

Disclosures

Of the companies mentioned in this week's letter, Exploration Insights does not own shares of Alamos Gold, Fiore Gold, Golden Queen Mining, Ivanhoe Mines, Orezone Gold, Torex Gold, Pretium Resources and Rubicon Minerals.

[Note that our trading activity is based on our investment thesis, which can be short- (tactical) or long-term (strategic), but the timing will not always be perfect due to market volatility and share price liquidity. As a subscriber, you may want to purchase/sell a stock sooner or later than we do. As we need to justify our purchases and sales while allowing our subscribers to trade with us, we, unfortunately, cannot always act as quickly as we would like. We also want to remind all our subscribers that they have access to the open and closed positions in the EI Portfolio via the website. As soon as we execute a trade, we update the price and date of the open and closed positions, depending on whether the position was purchased or sold. There can be delays due to the illiquidity of some of the junior mining stocks and the time needed to link a new stock to our website. Our site visit expenses are covered by the company.]
